AWARDS and HONORS

J. Milton Yinger Lifetime Award for a Distinguished Career in Sociology, conferred by the North Central Sociological Association (presented March 29, 2019, in Cincinnati, Ohio):

According to the Association, "The principal criterion for this award is an extraordinary career in some activity that has furthered the work of sociology as a discipline. A person might be nominated for exemplary work in any one of the areas, or for uncommon contributions in two or more of these areas:

- * Scholarly Contributions, . . .
- * Public or Applied Sociology, . . .
- * Sociological Teaching and Learning, . . . and
- * Exemplary Service Within the Region"

(which consists of eastern Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio, western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and the Canadian province of Ontario).

Prix du Québec [Prix d'Excellence en Études québécoises], conferred by the Ministère des Relations internationales et de la Francophonie of the Gouvernement du Québec in association with the American Council for Québec Studies (presented November 4, 2016, in Portland, Maine):

The Prix du Québec has been awarded at two-year intervals since 1994 to a U.S.-based humanist or social scientist to recognize a career of distinguished academic contributions to the study of Québec and francophone North America, and to acknowledge a record of service to fellow scholars.

Charlotte Elizabeth Procter Honorific Fellowship, The Graduate School, Princeton University (1980-1981):

One of seven students from across the University's 52 graduate departments and programs to be so recognized for "outstanding performance and professional promise."

National Science Foundation (NSF) Graduate Fellowship in Sociology (1977-1980):

One of eleven predoctoral students of sociology in the United States selected in 1977 for three years of support by NSF.

Highest Honors in Sociology, College of William and Mary (1977):

One of nine William and Mary seniors in 1977 to receive the bachelor's degree with highest honors.

Christiano, Kevin James

Christiano, Kevin James

"Kevin J. Christiano does not play down the indifference of researchers from the United States toward Québec. He quite rightly points out the difficulty of comparing the religious paths of the two lands" [translation from the French]. -- Lucia Ferretti (Université du Québec à Trois-Rivières [Canada]) in Études d'histoire religieuse (1-2, 2021).

"Labor Poet Ralph Chaplin: Resister to the 'Great War,' Prisoner of the 'Class War.'" Journal for the Study of Radicalism 14 (Fall, 2020): 157-182.

"European Principles and Canadian Practices: Developing Secular Contexts for Religious Diversity" [Revised and updated for book publication]. Christiano, Kevin James

"Christianity in North America: Changes and Challenges in a Land of Promise." Pp. 139-153 in Charles E. Farhadian (ed.), Introducing World Christianity. Oxford, England, and Malden, Mass.: Blackwell Publishing, 2012.

"Two chapters that stand out are 'Middle Eastern and North African Christianity,' by Heather Sharkey, and 'Christianity in North America: Changes and Challenges in a Land of Promise,' by Kevin Christiano. . . . Christiano's sensitivity to different conceptions of Christianity in the United States and Canada is impressive." -- Rodney L. Petersen (Boston University) in the International Bulletin of Missionary Research (January, 2013).

This chapter has been assigned as course reading in Philosophy and Religious Studies at Middle Tennessee State University (Murfreesboro).

"Clio Goes to Church -- Again: Places for History in the Sociology of Religion." Pp. 9-45 in Barbara Jones Denison (ed.), History, Time, Meaning, and Memory: Ideas for the Sociology of Religion. Religion and the Social Order, Volume 20. Leiden, The Netherlands, and Boston: E. J. Brill Academic Publishers, 2011.

". . . Christiano examines how sociologists create and value knowledge, and what gaps result. He argues that our quest for universalistic social theory has too often led sociologists to gloss over the specifics of time, place, context, and contingency. He urges more attention to particulars, and his commentary on the history of sociological research provides an enlightening case in point." -- Susanne C. Monahan (Montana State University) in Contemporary Sociology (January, 2014).

"Personal Liberty, Social Difference, and the Dynamics of Devotion: Voluntary Religion and State Regulation in the United States and Canada." Pp. 99-118 in Jürgen Gebhardt (ed.), Religious Cultures -- Communities of Belief [Religionskulturen -- Glaubensgemeinschaften]. Publications of the Bavarian-American Academy, Volume 10 [Publikationen der Bayerischen Amerika-Akademie, Band 10]. Heidelberg, Germany: Universitätsverlag Winter, 2009.

Christiano, Kevin James

"Clio Goes to Church: Revisiting and Revitalizing Historical Thinking in the Sociology of Religion." Presidential Address to the Association for the Sociology of Religion, 2006. Sociology of Religion: A Quarterly Review 69 (Spring, 2008): 1-28.

This address was the stimulus for a later panel discussion, "Clio Goes to Church (Again): History, Time, Meaning, and Memory in the Sociology of Religion," at the Annual Meeting of the Association for the Sociology of Religion, at the Boston Park Plaza and Towers Hotel, Boston, Massachusetts (July 31, 2008).

"The Trajectory of Catholicism in Twentieth-Century Quebec." Pp. 21-61 in Leslie Woodcock Tentler (ed.), The Church Confronts Modernity: Catholicism Since 1950 in the United States, Ireland, and Quebec. Washington, D.C.: The Catholic University of America Press, 2007.

"In their respective pieces on Catholicism in Quebec Kevin J. Christiano and Michael Gauvreau raise penetrating questions about institutional Catholicism's own responsibility for the collapse of Catholic practice in French Canada." -- Oliver P. Rafferty (Sogang University [Korea]) in the Journal of Ecclesiastical History (January, 2009).

"I have to admit that it has been a long time since I read an edited work as stimulating as this one. The quality of the studies dealing with Québec, by Christiano, Gauvreau and Baum, lend to this rare comparative project an exceptional status, seeing that for once the language barrier has been overcome, in a publication where the treatments of the three national cases rely on a scholarly literature that is quite up-to-date" [translation from the French]. -- Louis Rousseau (Université du Québec à Montréal [Canada]) in the Canadian Historical Review (March, 2009).

"Church and State in Institutional Flux: Canada and the United States." Pp. 69-89 in David Lyon and Marguerite Van Die (eds.), Rethinking Church, State, and Modernity: Canada Between Europe and America. Toronto: University of Toronto Press, 2000.

"This is the sort of book I have wanted to read for a long time. We desperately need cross[-]national sociological studies of religious phenomena. This book should be required reading for every sociologist of religion because the sociology of religion comes alive through its pages . . .

Christiano, Kevin James

"Christiano points out one of the defining differences of Canada -- . . . there is nothing self-evident in Canada. The open fluidity, constant negotiation and regular threat of dismemberment provide a very different climate for politics in Canada . . . Again, strategic comparisons with the United States, the United Kingdom and Europe bring to life this analysis of the Canadian scene." -- Gary D. Bouma (Monash University [Australia]) in the Canadian Journal of Sociology Online (November-December, 2001).

"Conflict and Order in Roman Catholic Thought." Pp. 229-246 in Joseph B. Gittler (ed.), Ideas of Concord and Discord in Selected World Religions. Research in Human Social Conflict, Volume 2. Stamford, Conn.: JAI Press, Inc., 2000.

"Secularization Theory: The Course of a Concept" (with William H. Swatos, Jr.). Introduction to Special Issue on "The Secularization Debate." Sociology of Religion: A Quarterly Review 60 (Fall, 1999): 209-228.

This essay is consistently ranked on the journal's Web page,

<<https://academic.oup.com/socrel/article/60/3/209/1658074>>,

as one of its five-to-ten most cited articles.

Also published as pp. 1-20 in a collection of essays on secularization, The Secularization Debate, edited by William H. Swatos, Jr., and Daniel V. A. Olson. A Co-Publication with the Association for the Sociology of Religion. Lanham, Md.: Rowman and Littlefield Publishers, Inc., 2000.

Translated into Turkish by Doç Dr. Ali Köse of the Ýlahiyat Fakóltesi, Marmara Üniversitesi [Faculty of Theology, University of Marmara (Turkey)] in Istanbul for inclusion as "Sekülerleşme Teorisi: Bir Kavramın Serüveni" ["Secularization Theory: The Adventure of a Concept"], pp. 95-121 in a collective volume, *Sekülerizm Sorgulanıyor: 21. "The book also benefits from exceptionally strong chapters focusing on various facets of the relationship between religion and the family . . . For example, in his chapter on the United States, Kevin Christiano offers an incisive account of the religious roots of familism in this nation, and a judicious overview of recent efforts on the part of Christian conservatives to promote the traditional family." -- W. Bradford Wilcox (University of Virginia) in Contemporary Sociology (March, 2003).

Reproduced for course use at Brigham Young University (Provo, Utah), the University of California at Berkeley, the University of Chicago (Illinois), Iowa State University (Ames), Miami University (Oxford, Ohio), the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and Northern Arizona University (Flagstaff).

"Support for the American Left, 1920-1924: The Opiate Thesis Reconsidered" (with †Rodney Stark [1934-2022]). Journal for the Scientific Study of Religion 31 (March, 1992): 62-75.

"The Church and the New Immigrants." Pp. 169-186 in Helen Rose Ebaugh (ed.), Vatican II and U. S. Catholicism. Religion and the Social Order, Volume 2. Greenwich, Conn.: JAI Press, Inc., 1991.

"Some of the chapters present and organize a wealth of information in new, very effective ways (Christiano's chapter, on new Catholic immigrants, is particularly noteworthy in this regard)." -- Gene Burns (Princeton University) in the Journal for the Scientific Study of Religion (March, 1993).

"Peter L. Berger's Invitation to Sociology: Twenty-Five Years of RSVPs." Teaching Sociology 18 (October, 1990): 503-509.

"Without a doubt, there is a long list of sociologists as pleased as I am to see Professor Christiano's address of Peter L. Berger's (1963) classic introduction to the discipline. . . . [He is one of those who] emerge from their narratives as exceptionally reflective instructors, committed to pedagogy not only as a technical matter but as a moral one as well. . . . This is a brave position indeed and I admire the courage Professor Christiano has displayed by presenting it. In doing so he has articulated a concern that, while probably shared by many teachers of sociology, is seldom expressed in public, let alone in print." -- Kenneth Stoddart (University of British Columbia [Canada]) in Teaching Sociology (October, 1990).

"Teaching Social Stratification: Some Moral and Humanistic Concerns." Pp. 1-6 in Carol J. Auster (ed.), Syllabi and Instructional Materials for Social Stratification. Second Edition. Washington, D.C.: Teaching Resources Center, American Sociological Association, 1988.

"Christiano's thoughtful essay on moral and humanistic concerns in the teaching of stratification . . . poses the difficult problem of striking a balance between the two extremes of attempting to avoid moral questions in the study of stratification, on the one hand, and overemphasizing them, on the other." -- John Bellamy Foster (University of Oregon) in Teaching Sociology (October, 1989).
